Use this form to request a recharacterization from one type of IRA to another. You may elect to recharacterize cash and/or securities.

If you made a contribution to a Roth or traditional IRA, or converted assets from a qualified plan or traditional IRA into a Roth IRA, you may recharacterize all or some of those assets (plus earnings) to a different type of IRA as follows:

- A contribution to a Roth IRA can be recharacterized into a traditional IRA
- A contribution to a traditional IRA can be recharacterized into a Roth IRA
- Assets converted from a traditional IRA into a Roth IRA can be recharacterized back into a traditional IRA
- Assets converted from a Qualified Plan into a Roth IRA can be recharacterized into a traditional IRA

The IRS permits you to recharacterize in the following situations:

- You change your mind about a contribution or conversion that was previously completed
- You are not eligible to contribute to a Roth account, or
- You are not eligible to convert a traditional IRA or a qualified plan to a Roth account, (also known as a failed conversion).

Your recharacterization must take place on or before the tax filing deadline (including extensions) for the year for which the contribution was made. The recharacterization must include any earnings or losses attributable to the contribution.
