

Abandoned Property Account Reinstatement

Please use this form to transfer your holdings out of Abandoned Property status.

Why is my account considered Abandoned?

Pursuant to state law, generally an account is considered Abandoned if:

- There is a lack of client-initiated activity (reinvestment of dividends does not constitute client-initiated activity), and/or
- Several monthly account statements have been returned by the U.S. Postal Service or have been undeliverable via email (e-delivery)

Accounts are moved into an Abandoned status to prevent your personal account information from being sent to an invalid address or email address. Holdings in Abandoned status cannot be accessed until your contact information (phone number, address and email address) is updated.
