

Dividend Reinvestment Form

When your investments generate dividends and capital gains, you can decide to receive them as cash payments deposited to your brokerage account or reinvest them to provide the opportunity to help build the value of your investments.

For stocks and exchange-traded funds, you can reinvest dividends and capital gains or receive cash. For mutual funds, you can reinvest dividends and capital gains or reinvest capital gains only. Or, you can elect to receive cash payments.

Any questions?

- Stock dividends are paid in cash unless you take action and indicate that you want to reinvest those dividends.
- Separate forms are needed for each eligible account.
- If you elect to reinvest dividends and then purchase additional shares of the same security, dividends for the new shares will also be reinvested.
- Changes to reinvestment elections are not allowed between the record date and the payable date. If a request is entered during this period, changes will not take effect until after the payable date.
- Changing reinvestment options does not impact special or optional dividends.
